

Dean's Brief

NYU SCHOOL OF PROFESSIONAL STUDIES

As I settle into my new role at NYU SPS, I've had the opportunity to meet with many of you virtually and in person. I have been deeply impressed by the energy, resilience, and genuine caring for each other that I have witnessed over and over again in this close-knit community. There are so many new initiatives and activities that are planned for the upcoming academic year. To keep you posted on all that is happening, we will continue to distribute the Dean's Brief with some new features. I hope you will give it a read and participate in our new monthly poll. Looking forward to fall!

Angie Kamath, Dean

DID YOU KNOW?

More than 1,600 new students will join the NYU SPS community this fall from over 20 countries. Can't wait to welcome each and every one of them and make them feel at home!

The pandemic did not deter NYU SPS from hosting panel discussions and conferences. More than 45,000 individuals have attended our online events since the pandemic began, remaining up-to-date on industry trends.

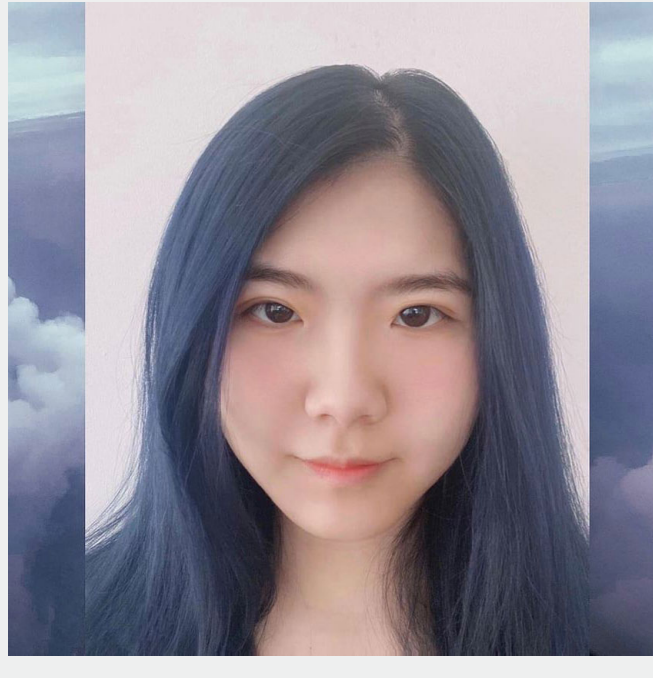

MONTHLY POLL

We want to hear from you, so we are introducing a new polling feature to ensure we keep our fingers on the pulse of the NYU SPS community. Participate in this month's short poll on what you will enjoy most about returning to in-person learning and working at NYU SPS. We'll publish the results in our next edition. TAKE THE POLL NOW!

STUDENT OF THE MONTH

Heyi (Lily) Liang, a student in the MS in Global Hospitality Management is currently completing a summer internship at Boston Consulting Group, where she is learning about market sizing, portfolio management, and helping clients to decide whether to enter a new market. She is finding the work challenging and interesting, and hopes to use her experience to prepare for a career in hospitality consulting.

Division of Programs in Business Signs Major Deal With SKEMA Business School

Recently, the Division of Programs in Business signed an agreement with SKEMA, a globally ranked business school, to provide courses for its Master of Science program in Global Luxury and Management (GLAM) for students spending time in New York City while earning their degree. The first course, "Luxury Business Ethics," will run this fall.

Students in the Center for Publishing Summer Publishing Institute (SPI) Hear From Top Industry Execs

The Center for Publishing Summer Publishing Institute (SPI) always boasts a lineup of amazing speakers from across the publishing industry. This year was no different. Students had the opportunity to hear from Simone Oliver (right) global editor-in-chief of Refinery29, among so many others in the book and digital publishing industry. They also networked with classmates from around the world who participated in the program.

SPS Launches Suite of Executive Education Courses and Certificates

Last academic year, NYU SPS soft launched executive education courses in the areas of business, real estate, and hospitality, focusing on programs that would provide immediately applicable skills for mid-tier managers on up through the C-suite. This fall, the portfolio has been expanded to include certificates and classes in digital marketing strategies, sales strategies, and distribution channel management for hospitality; as well as cyber leadership.
